

- Disputed ownership funds requiring special administration. Based on the motion, the court finds that the funds qualify as “disputed ownership funds” as the Internal Revenue Service defines that term (26 C.F.R. § 1.468B-9(b)(1)) but require special administration, such as periodic withdrawals for payment of expenses related to this case or a related proceedings. A special administrator is required other than the Clerk and the Administrative Office of the United States Courts. Accordingly, this court appoints the following person as the special administrator to administer the funds, charge fees, and withhold and pay taxes: _____ . The special administrator’s compensation and any special terms governing the special administrator’s performance are set forth in a separate order.
